

Villa Athena is the only five-star hotel in the heart of the Valley of the Temples. It is only 200 metres from the Temple of Concordia, in one of the most extraordinary archaeological sites in the world, declared a World Heritage Site by UNESCO.

THE SPACES

THE ORIGINS

In the garden of Villa Athena, the remains of an early Christian basilica can still clearly be seen. It was built between the 5th and 6th century A.D. The recovery of the liturgical furnishings, together with the presbytery enclosure, are a clear testimony of this.

“ *Beyond the wood, on the long high ridge,
the surviving Temples arose,
and seemed to be set intentionally at a distance,
to enhance the beautiful view
from the magnificent villa* ”

from “The Old and the Young” by Luigi Pirandello
