

MEZZATORRE

Welcome to Mezzatorre Hotel & Thermal Spa, a peaceful oasis proudly dominating the Gulf of Naples.

Open for 'the season' the hotel captures the loveliest times in Italy from spring to autumn, when sunlight glints off the fresh seas lapping the Mezzatorre's private cove.

THE STORY

The castle of Mezzatorre has an ancient and fascinating history. The name "Mezzatorre" derives from the presence of an ancient watch tower remained unfinished (from here "Mezza") and built between the sixteenth and seventeenth century by the Aragonese as a watchtower. It was enlarged in the eighteenth century by the dukes of Rancidello. In the thirties, the tower was used as a pension until one of the owners was Luigi Patalano, a distinguished scholar, politician and poet.

Founder of political and cultural magazines, he transformed the tower into an active cultural cenacle. Patalano also built "La Colombaia" in the same park as Mezzatorre, just a short walk from the hotel.

After being owned by Baron Fassini, an educated aristocrat, elegant and lover of good life, the beautiful villa was bought in the 50s by Luchino Visconti, the eclectic Italian movie director, who brought an atmosphere of fruitful culture to the island.

DESTINATION

Ischia has always been attractive for its wild beauty, healing thermal springs and excellent vineyard. A 17-squaremile island of parched tufa and bougainvillea, also commonly known as Isola Verde for its extremely fertile soils. Just off the Amalfi coast, Ischia is Capri's more mysterious and eclectic sister, one of Italy's best kept secrets.

Proudly dominating the seascape from a rocky promontory, the Mezzatorre Hotel overlooks the sparkling Bay of Naples, the island of Capri and the sea on the horizon. Located near Forio d'Ischia, the hotel is secluded in the midst of a thick Mediterranean maquis and just a few minutes from San Montano Bay, where in 750 b.c. the Greeks landed and founded the first colony of Magna Grecia, and the small village of Lacco Ameno, to stroll along the seafront or sip a coffee at a bar in the square.

The strategic location of Ischia, overlooking the Gulf of Naples, makes Mezzatorre the perfect private "harbour" to discover the bay's beauty through island hopping, crossing the sea by series of shorter journeys between islands like Procida and Capri.
