MANDARIN ORIENTAL, LAGO DI COMO – ROOMS, SUITES & VILLAS

Immersed in a centuries-old botanical park on the eastern shore of Lake Como, Mandarin Oriental, Lago di Como offers 75 guestrooms, suites and private Villas set amongst nine distinguished buildings, allowing for more privacy. The majority of the Villas are named after plants and trees that grow in the resort's lush botanical garden. The beating heart of the hotel is the historic 18th century Villa Roccabruna, the former private residence of Italian soprano Giuditta Pasta, which houses ten of the hotel's sophisticated suites as well as public spaces. Two of the Villas, namely Villa del Lago and Villa della Rocca, are available exclusively for private hire.

Balancing Italian elegance and comfort, the rooms are decorated with classic materials and feature gentle earthy hues that lend a light and summery feel. The décor has deliberately been kept essential to allow the eye to drift outside and focus on the beauty of the lake and the surrounding landscape.

Thanks to their secluded location, rooms and suites provide guests with plenty of privacy. Accommodations are exceptionally spacious, ranging from 25 to 343 sqm, with oakwood parquet floors and contemporary furnishings. Bathrooms are particularly spacious, offering the perfect space to relax, with a comfortable yet simple décor creating a minimal look. Precious details as marble showers or other features add a touch of luxury and elegance. Rooms are equipped with modern amenities, including HD Smart TVs, multi-socket adaptors, Wi-Fi, and HDMI cables to connect additional devices as well as Bose speakers. Most rooms and suites offer balconies, spacious terraces and gardens that allow guests to admire the view and experience the outdoors from the privacy of their room.

The layout and design of the suites were conceived by internationally renowned architects, recognised for their creativity and ability to perfectly represent the atmosphere and environment that surrounds them. The most recent renovations involved two Villas in particular: Villa delle Palme and Villa della Quercia.

On the one hand, the interiors of Villa delle Palme are signed by Eric Egan, an acclaimed American designer who managed to create a refined environment, without sacrificing comfort. The colour palette of the furnishings, from the lamps and curtains to the sofas and armchairs, spans shades of cream and beige to create a contemporary and airy feel. Here and there, gentle shades of green and deck-egg blue recall the colours of the lake. Walls are embellished with delicate works of art on Japanese cotton paper made by Shuhei Matsuyama, a Japanese artist who resides in Milan, and with mindful, mark-making pieces by UK artist Rod McIntosh. The delicacy of the works exudes a sense of calm and recalls the group's eastern heritage.

The design of Villa della Quercia, on the other hand, is created by the Milan based architecture studio Reveria with the object of blending the interiors with the beauty of nature experienced in the outdoor spaces. Italian style characterizes the ambience: rooms are elegant and welcoming, the natural colours and clean shapes of the furnishings are enriched by handcrafted objects and by a careful study of lighting that replicates the lake's reflections. Many are the references to the Oriental heritage of the group: textiles and furnishings are included to create a connection between the origins of Mandarin Oriental Hotel Group and the Italian artisanal tradition. In collaboration with the gallery THE POOL NYC, a selection of four artists have been called to create site-specific artworks to be featured in the rooms and suites of Villa Della Quercia. Niccolò Montesi, Francesco Mori, OVO and Giuseppe Stampone interpreted the deep spirit of Lake Como and its surroundings, blending the artistic atmosphere of the place with inspirations from the East.
